duly; but how can they do it without the riving spirit of God.

Mr. Little was the pext speaker. The missions established by the Society in Germany, he said, have been very successful, and I speak from actual knowledge when I say that they are deserving in an eminent degree the soulfidence and support of the Church. I think that no better evidence of their ability to accomplish the intention to the Church than to say that the Society is imbued with the true spirit of Methodism. Professing to enlarge Methodism we can certainly ask no more than that they make good Methodists of those to whom we send them. Their hymn books, &c., are all translations of our books, and all their tracts are stamped with American Methodism.

the time had come when there might be safely introduced but the management of the Missionary Society a slight change. I believe, he said, in domestic bissions, and I thank God for the result of domestic missions. I believe that when the Methodist Churches reach to a state of prosperity, we shall appropriate a million dollars for this enterprise.

If there is anything we desire for our church it is that she should be brought to feel in this important question, and take up a higher standard of liberality in years to come. The Rev. Dr. Warren, of the Boston Theological Seminary, followed. He proposed, he said, to review the nary, followed. He proposed, he said, to review the history of Christian Missionary work, and to point out the true theory. For fifty years we have discussed the aspects of this course, and no one has yet told us of God's plan, and examined how far we are following his pian. It is fitting for us to pause now, as the last sands of our jubilee year are running out, and examine the situation. Our hosts can never carry on the work without doing the Master's will, in the diffusion of the blessings of the gospel to the world. That is the conceded object, but how, is the question. There are five theories of the manner of carrying on missionary work. The first in the order of is the question. There are five theories of the manner of carrying on missionary work. The first in the order of time was by individual propagandism. The second was by religious bodies from part of the Church. The third is by the colonization of Christian stock. The fourth by associations of philauthropists. The fifth and greatest is that it is the work of the whole Christian Church as a Church. The diversity of opinion about these theories is caused by the fact that God has availed bimself of all these methods. The Apostles were individual propagandists and were successful. After that territorial acquisition through the power of arms was resorted to. In the seventeenth and eighteenth century, the overflow of the Church, as it were, the migration of Christians, was the means of the spread of the gospel. In the nineteenth century the conversions were the work of the whole Christian Church as a Church. Through individual agency we all know how much can be accomplished, from the conversion with the conversion of the conversions were the work of the whole christian Church as a Church. Through individual agency we all know how much can be accomplished, from the conversion with the conversion of the conversion were the work of the whole christian Church as a Church. Through individual agency we all know how much can be accomplished, from the conversion of the church the conversion of the church the conversion were the work of the whole christian church as a Church. The conversion the conversion were the work of the whole christian church as a Church. The conversion the conversion were the work of the whole christian through the conversion were the work of the conversion w the means of the spread of the gospel. In the nineteenth century the conversions were the work of the whole Christian Church as a Church. Through individual agency we all know how much can be accomplished, from the sacred historical writings. The second theory, the conversion through the secular arms is the favorite method of the Romish Church. The most interesting ecclesiastical documents, in the speaker's opinion, is the letter of Xavier urging that the conversion of India should be undertaken by military conquest. But this method was not confined to Rome. Cromwell had a similar plan. It was the dominant theory of that age. The Dutch also tried it. The disposition to make use of the secular arm for this purpose is strong even now, and many think that if the Government were to issue a decree establishing the Christian religion it would be submitted to. But we must remember that Christ has said: "Whoso taketh the sword shall perish by the sword." We should remember the promise to Abrabam, when his seed was blessed. The only nations which are filling up the earth are the Christians. [Applause.] Slowly and surely the march goes on. The Divine commission is not the old Adamic one—"increase and multiply;" but "go forth and preach." All that has been accomplished has been through missionaries. Yet this is not the correct theory, for it does not go far enough. It prevails in England and America, to a great extent, but it is erroneous, for it carries on the work not through the whole Church, but through a small body of men created for that purpose. The highest and holiest powers of the Church were transferred to it. The making of converts was left entirely to it. Another defect is its lack of safeguards. It has plensry authority over everything. Members of this Association could be of any religious faith, there being not even a provision that its members must be believers in Christianity. Above all others, is the objection that its particular tendency is to look upon the work as a charity. It is, the speaker earnestly ascertain how far we are acting in accordance with these principles. Within 50 years there has been a revolution in the policy of missionary work. Not one of these propositions was received by the Methodist Episcopal Church half a century since. Our works in Asia, Africa, and Europe are glorious, but this revolution in the missionary system has been the grandest. The gentleman concluded by paying a tribute to John P. Durbin, whose name was received with applianse, to whom, he said, this good was owing.

with acclamations of approval. He expressed surprise and pleasure that the subject under consideration has at last been broached; said that the object was a grand one, and that, were there nothing else in view but raising the degraded, it would be enough to make us work with all our hearts. For eighteen hundred years have we inbored to convert the world, but two-thirds still remain to be worked upon. Some 700,000,000 are still out of the pale of Christianity, and it will be three thousand years before the entire world is converted, unless more work proportionately is done. If we would finish in one thousand years, we must do 700,000 per year. Unless we work very hard, the little children we nurse in our arms will not live to see the milleulum. Have we the power to hasten it? Have we the men and means? I many will ask, but it is merely God's purpose that man shall lead his fellows to believe, or to suffer for wrong doing. We are too fond of self-gratulation; we put down $300,000 and say "we have done nobly." He carnestly exhorted greater activity, and said that 50 cents per member will never convert the world. What would we give to get out of the draft, during the war? We would all give $100, he said, for a substitute. Now, my friends, let me beg you to heathen. He was applanded at the close of his speech, and after Bishop Jaues had pronounced the benediction the meeting adjourned. and pleasure that the subject under consideration has at

The Presbyterian Church in Fourth-ave., corner of Twenty-second-st., was crowded last evening by members of the New York Sunday-School Teachers' Society, to listen to an address by the Rev. Dr. Hall, on the sacredness of Sunday-school teaching. He spoke of the importance and necessity of moral and intellectual preparation, warned teachers not to underrate or overtate the faculties of their pupils, to try and win their considence, to enforce respect, and to give them the conviction of their own carnestness, to be serious and grave without being cross, to illustrate their teachings, and above all to pray for God's blessing on their work. Mr. Weilder, the Superintendent of Sunday-Schools, presided, and the meeting separated after singing a hymn.

A bazaar is at present being held in Apollo Hall, in aid of the building fund of Trinity Baptist Church, situated in Fifty-second-st., near Third-ave. Nearly all the Baptist churches of New-York are interested in it, and are represented at the tables; and the Baptist churches of Brooklyn have one of the finest tables in the hall. The bazaar was opened on last Wednesday, and was intended to last for a week. To-day there will be a cheap sale of the stock remaining on hand. The first three days realized between $5.000 and $5.000. There are 10 or 12 tables which display a great variety of articles, many of them exceedingly beautiful and costly. Mrs. J. Stanford Holme is the principal directress. Miss Bruce of Yonkers has charge of a splendid floral temple, the contributions to which have amounted to over $400. Last night there was a grand floral contest for a $100 bouquet, given by a gentleman to be voted to the handsomeet lady in the hall. The attractions of the bazaar are numerous, and several of them unique.

ANOTHER CASE OF HEREDITARY CONSUMPTION CURED WITH INHALING FLUIDS.

Doctor Q. VAN HEMNELL, 26 West Thirty-filth-st., New York City:
DEAR SIR: When I commenced using your remedies last Spring. I had not little hone of recovery, as my disease was kereditary and supposed facurable. I was suffering with a very severe cough, and was so weak from frequent betoerings of the Longs, that I was incapable of any kind of labor. After using your INHALING MIJUNS a short time, my cough became less and finally ceased entirely; since then thate grained rapidly in fissh and strength, and now copy better health that I have far years. It is with the hope that persons anfiering with that dread disease CONSUMPTION, or any Nose, Throat, or Long Diseases, may learn of your valuable remedies and be convinced of their virtues, that I send you this letter. I refer to the following well known gentlemen who are fully acquainted with my case: Mr. C. M. Gramman, Charles White, N. H. Gibbs, and John E. Smith of Norwalk, Coin., and Mr. D. T. Hubbell, I. H. Wilson, R. S. Millard, F. W. Smith of Beinel, Conn. Very truly, yours.

ARTHUR DURANT.

FIRST MORTGAGE CONVERTIBLE

SEVEN PER CENT GOLD BONDS

PEKIN RAILROAD COMPANY OF ILLINOIS, Principal and interest payable in gold at the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, New-York. Coupons payable April and October 1.

DANVILLE, URBANA, BLOOMINGTON AND

FREE OF GOVERNMENT TAX.

TOTAL ISSUE OF BONDS $2,000,000. The bonds are limited to less than $18,000 per mile. and are secured by a First Mortgage on the entire property of the Company, which cost about $40,000 per mile, and which, we can say with the utmost confidence, will be worth soon after the completion of the road at least double its cost. The consolidation of this line with the Indianapolis, Crawfordsville and Danville Road places over two hundred miles under one management, and furnishes still further security to the bondholders, these bonds having been assumed (a virtual guarantee) by the consolidated company under the name of the Indianapolis, Bloomington nd Western Railroad Company. This is an east and west road, connecting with direct lines to Boston New-York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore on the east, and with the Pacific Roads on the west. It runs through the richest and most populous district of Illinois, the local business of which will be more than sufficient to sustain it, while the through business (which will be limited only by the capacity of the road) must make it one of the best paying railways in the country. The greater part of the road is now finished, and the bal-the first of January next. Over two-thirds of the loan has been taken by actual investors. We continue to offer, for the present, the balance at 95 and accrued interest in currency, at which price they pay about 10 per cent interest in currency-50 per cent more than Governments. The high premium which the stock of all the East and West roads in Illinois commands justifies the belief that the stock of this road will also soon seil above par, thus making the convertible clause of the ance will be completed and thoroughly equipped by bond a valuable option. These bonds may be registered, if desired. All marketable securities received in exchange at the highest market rates. Bonds forwarded by express free of charge. Pamphlets containing full particulars furnished on application by the undersigned
